

Contemporary design, modern amenities and views to die for? SKYLAR Magazine checks in to Queenstown's best kept secret, a luxurious citadel of peace and quiet that will distill your New Zealand experience to pure indulgence.

forty- two

It's not every day you find a home away from home when travelling for business or pleasure. It is even less frequently when you day dream of your own home looking like your hotel room. Both of these will come true as soon as you walk through the massive timber door entrance into Forty-Two, a three-level, three bedroom, luxury residence perched above the bustling Queenstown lakefront.

Forty-Two has absolutely everything you need; from the entertainment centre with its plasma television, DVD, CD, cable TV and independent remotes in all rooms, right through to the patio with lap pool and barbecue for entertaining.

The kitchen would have a celebrity chef smiling and there is room to gather and room to disappear, a must when travelling with family groups. On the bottom floor is a secure double garage for the racy little red thing you got from the hire agency, a laundry and two large rooms. These are decked out in ski cabin-like beech wood wall paneling especially milled for Forty-Two, each with ensuite. The top level features a sprawling master bedroom, with a gas fireplace, walk-in dressing room and the best views of the lake and Remarkables.

The bathroom is one of those water closets that draw gasps from jealous house guests; black marble from floor to ceiling, it features a stand-alone bath tub, double vanities and double-head rain showers. There is also a sophisticated office space with internet access, fax, printer and all the technology you need to stay in touch with the office.

However, the centre of Forty-Two is the hub. With a balcony on one side, accompanied by floor to ceiling viewing windows, and a massive fireplace made from hand picked river stones, the lounge is a place begging you to have a cocktail party or to curl up with a classic movie, while the dining table has room for every man and his dog and the kitchen behind can cater to the masses or for a romantic couple. As one of Touch of Spice's luxury properties, Forty-Two is so much more than simply a luxurious living space.

They can cater to your every whim, including transfers from Queenstown airport, catering and daily housekeeping, transferring your holiday home into a hub for your luxurious Queenstown experience. Enjoy!
